v/s.

M/s. Avis Marine Services,

— Opponent

Shri George Vaz, Union Leader, representing the Applicant.

Shri Ramesh Dessai, Labour Consultant representing the Opponent.

Panaji, date: — 4-12-1981.

AWARD

This is an application under Section 33(c)(2) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, hereinafter called the Act, filed by the above Applicant against the above Opponent, claiming from the latter four hours overtime put in daily by him during his 10 months work and his leave wages during the said period. The Applicant does not give any details regarding the date of his appointment, date of termination of his service, the nature of work etc. He only mentions that his salary was Rs. 160/- per month. The application is dt. 16-10-1978.

2. The Opponent, in the written statement, has stated that the Applicant, who is a retired pensioner from the Navy was engaged as Watchman, first, temporarily, for a period of one month, at a consolidated salary of Rs. 160/- per month w.e.f. 4-4-77 and, then, as probationer w.e.f. 5-5-77. Later his probationary appointment was extended by Opponent's letter S-1/2/1440 dt. 14-10-77. The Applicant worked from 5-5-77 to 13-12-77 i.e. approximately 8 months, excluding his temporary appointment for one month. During this period of service, he was paid a monthly salary of Rs. 160/- plus Rs. 16/- as House Allowance. His duties consisted of 8 hours daily and for any extra work done, he was paid overtime alongwith his monthly salary. The total overtime paid to him is Rs. 299.21 for the months from July 1977 to December 1977, as per the details shown in the statement. His claim for extra four hours daily is not correct and he never complained for non-payment of overtime. It is most improbable that any person would forfeit his overtime every month and only claim it after 10 months from ceasing his duties.

So far his leave is concerned, he was entitled to 30 days leave per year under the Shops & Establishments Act. His 240 days of service entitle him for 20 days leave, out of which he enjoyed 10 days, as per the details given and reported sick from 31-12-77 and did not work any more but was paid upto 9-1-78, which is his leave salary for the remaining 10 days. Therefore, he is not entitled for any more leave wages, as claimed by him. He was also paid bonus at the rate of 20 per cent for the financial year 1977-78 and, on receipt of this bonus, on 20-9-78, he most willingly signed a certificate to the effect that he had received all his dues from the management and nothing whatsoever remained due to him on his account.

3. In his rejoinder, the Applicant states that he was given an appointment order dt. 4-5-77 and, after completing the probation period, he was made permanent. He was allotted duties of 12 hours per day and not paid extra wages for the 4 extra hours but only given promise that he would be paid his overtime dues. He was also made to work on Sundays and holidays for 12 hours without being paid double wages on his days of rest. Regarding the certificate having been issued by him, such certificate, if issued, could have been taken from him by the employer on false pretence because he does not know the English language.

4. No issues were framed in this case by the then Presiding Officer Shri Kollali. The Applicant and the Opponent gave their statements before the court and now the file is before me for delivering the Award.

5. The only point that arises for the determination of this court is as to whether the Applicant has proved his claim for overtime and leave salary.

6. Exhibit W-1 produced by the Applicant shows that he was appointed as Watchman in the Opponent's firm from 5-5-77, on probationary basis, for 3 months, on a consolidated salary of Rs. 160/- per month and medical benefit and leave as applicable. During the probation period his appointment could be terminated at any time with 24 hours notice or one day salary without assigning any reason and, on completion of the probation period, the Applicant shall be made permanent.

7. The Opponent has admitted in his cross-examination the receipt of the letter Exhibit W-1(a) and his signature at the foot of the Exhibit in token of acceptance of job. This letter is an appointment letter of the Applicant. It is stated therein inter alia that he is initially appointed for a period of one month w.e.f. 4-4-77, on a consolidated salary of Rs. 180/- p.m., which could be extended depending on the performance of his duties by the Applicant. The Applicant has returned this letter to the Opponent after signing on the place where it was written "Accepted". Therefore, the contention of the Opponent that the Applicant was first appointed temporarily for one month w.e.f. 4-4-77 and later, as probationer, for 3 months w.e.f. 5-5-77 is to be assumed as correct.

8. It is an admitted fact that the Applicant was getting Rs. 160/- as pay and Rs. 15/- as House Allowance.

9. The Applicant has stated in his statement that, besides 4 hours extra work he was putting in daily, he had to work on Sundays and public holidays; he was paid Rs. 6/- or Rs. 9/- as wages for working on Sundays or holidays; the calculation was done once a month and the payment made along with his monthly wages; however, although promised, he was not paid overtime for the 4 hours extra work put in by him daily. Regarding leave salary, he has stated that he has enjoyed only 10 days leave and has not been paid of the remaining leave at his credit; that no notice was given to him for removal from services and when he claimed from the management his overtime and other dues the management came to beat him and he ran away.

In his cross, he has denied that he joined the services on 4-4-77 and also denied the suggestion that his duty hours were from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is stated that there was an attendance card in which the daily working hours were being noted by the office; this card was in his possession during the month but, at the end of the month, it was given in the office for verification. Each month he used to ask for the payment of overtime and the Proprietor usually was saying "I will pay", but the Manager used to tell him "Get out".

10. He has admitted Exhibit M-1 to M-4 as his leave applications. These applications prove that he has enjoyed in all 20 days leave. The payments regarding Sundays and holidays have not been noted down by him. He has admitted his signature in the acquitances from July to December 1977 both for his wages and overtime and stated that overtime paid to him was beyond 12 hours and denied the suggestion that it included all the overtime done by him and further that he did not work on Sundays and holidays.

In his re-examination, he has stated that a Duty Register indicating the hours of work of each employee was maintained by the employer; it bears the signature of the employer also. Besides, the employer was issuing attendance card to each employee.

This is all the evidence led by the Applicant.

11. On behalf of the employer, Shri Anthony Rodrigues, Superintendent, was examined. He has stated that he knows the Applicant who was working with the employer during his tenure. The presence and the absence of the staff members was marked on an attendance book which has been produced and marked as Exhibit M-5. He has also produced the wage register which shows that the Applicant has been paid of his wages from 4-11-77 and of his overtime from July to December 1977. The Applicant fell sick on 30-12-1977 and, thereafter, he left the job. They used to maintain cards regarding working hours, but they were destroyed after 3 months; now they have cards from 1979 onwards. The overtime was marked in the cards and paid at the end of the month. He cannot produce any register showing the overtime duty carried out by the Applicant; the cashier was maintaining the register of wages and attendance register. The other employees were provided with cards for recording duty hours. They had no watchman on Sundays. They have maintained overtime register from 1979.

To the court, he has stated that they did not know that, under the Shops & Establishments Act, 1975, they had to maintain a separate overtime register. In 1979 they came to know that the Payment of Wages Act and Minimum Wages Act were applicable to them and so they started a different register.

This is all the evidence led by the employer.

12. The above evidence shows that the Applicant was paid, besides his wages, also the overtime from July to December 1977. This overtime, according to the Applicant, is besides the four hours extra time he was putting in daily. However, this assertion of the Applicant has not been proved. It is but natural that if, besides the overtime paid, there was other overtime to be paid from the time the Applicant joined the Company till he left his job, the Applicant would not have waited for so many months so as to claim it only after he gave up his job. He also would not accept each month the overtime paid to him by the employer if it amounted to a part payment only of the overtime put in by the Applicant. The Applicant's allegation that he was claiming his overtime every month from the Proprietor, who was promising to pay it, although the Manager used to tell him "get out" cannot be believed, moreover so because if the Manager used to tell him to get out, this would show that there was no agreement between the Proprietor and the Manager regarding such payment and this would lead the Applicant to press more strongly for this payment, without further delay.

13. The employer's witness has stated that the cashier used to maintain only the register of wages and the attendance register. The other employees were issued attendance cards. From this statement it appears that, so far the Applicant is concerned, only attendance card was issued to him for recording his duty hours. Such attendance cards, however, were destroyed after three months by the employer. This destruction cannot be simply said as malafide because the Applicant gave up the job in January 1978 and filed this application before the court only on 16-10-78, i.e. about 10 months after, and therefore, it cannot be said without any more that the company expected that the Applicant would claim through the court his alleged dues which, according to the company, did not exist at all and he never claimed from them before, and therefore, destroyed the cards.

14. From all this evidence, I conclude that the Applicant has been paid by the Opponent of all his overtime.

15. Regarding his leave pay, it is proved that for 8 months the Applicant worked, he was entitled to 28 days leave which he has fully enjoyed, and, therefore, no leave salary stands at his credit to claim for its payment.

16. In view of the above, I pass the following Order:
